Small Group Questions

1. If it is correct that sanctification is a lifelong process moving us ever closer to the purpose God has especially designed for us, does it then follow that our responsibility and capacity to glorify God also increases as we move from youth to senior adult?
2. Since God has already forgiven all of our sins, do we have to ask forgiveness every time we sin?
3. How is it that so many of us, Christians freed from sin by Christ's death and resurrection, continue to live enslaved to a particular sin that we feel powerless to overcome?
4. We are to die to sin in a general sense, but what are some specific sins you need to die to?
5. As you are dead to sin and a slave to righteousness, what does it look like for you to pursue holiness?
6. Should the church embrace and more formally encourage believers to "renew" their vows to God?
